Yearly Enrollment/Yearly Retention Rate

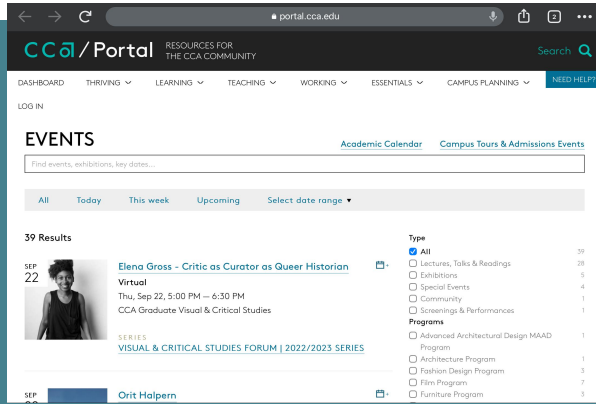

and Financial aid

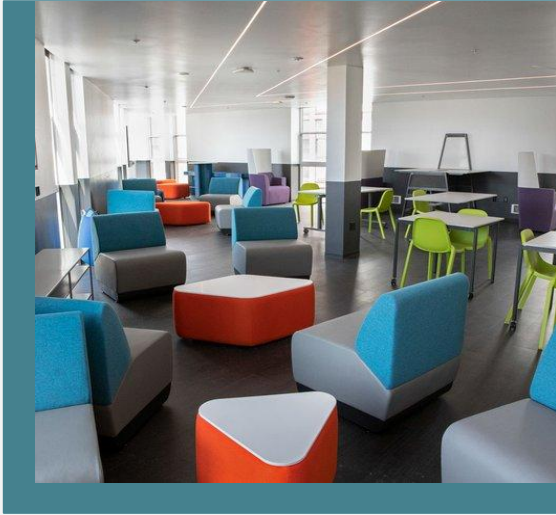

Tuition for California College of the Arts is $50,592 for the 2020/2021 academic year. (Maybe the number has changed in a year but as far as I know, there's nothing saying otherwise) There is 1,225 undergraduate students. It's a pretty small college having 1,619 students (number can vary) 22% of students at cca use/are on financial aid.

Student Life

There's many different types of extracurricular activities, them mainly being social and about student body/government. Each activity works on something that is an essential life skill(s). There's also events they host to try in bring students closer together in creating art and a community. Many events that have to do with art, there's even a calendar about scheduled events you can sign up for.

All students are required to live in dorms for the first two school years at cca. They also I have a new dining area to eat and so you can meet other students in hopes of making new friends at cca. Also living in dorms could help you feel more comfortable collaborating with other students.

Dorms/Living on Campus

There's also a building called Blattner Hall, it looks like a apartment style place that's for two people with a full living room and kitchen in each suite. It's also meant to be environmentally friendly having renewable water and solar panels on the roof.

Why I chose CCA

I chose CCA because I've been doing art for quite some time and it's a pretty close college. It'd be nice to meet people who are also trying to pursue a career in art just like I am. I wanna get my education at a nice college and I think CCA is that college.
